Snowflake NHB was founded in 2015 by a group of theatre artists who were passionate about creating a space for modern theatre in Snowflake. The company's first production was a staged reading of The Laramie Project, a play about the 1998 murder of Matthew Shepard. The play was a success, and helped to raise awareness of hate crimes in the community.

Since then, Snowflake NHB has produced a number of other successful productions, including The Glass Menagerie, A Raisin in the Sun, and The Aliens. The company has also hosted a number of workshops and events, including a playwriting workshop for young people and a discussion series on social justice issues.

Snowflake NHB is committed to making theatre that is relevant and accessible to the community. The company's productions are often free or low-cost, and the company works to make sure that its performances are accessible to people with disabilities. Snowflake NHB also offers a variety of educational programs, including workshops and classes for young people and adults.
